

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The Yaka may arrive here this evening, although due tomorrow. The vessel is on route from Yokohama. The Yaka brings two hundred tons of freight.

Miss Branch Rebekah Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., will meet in Odd Fellows hall this evening promptly at seven thirty o'clock. All visiting Rebekahs are cordially invited to attend. After the meeting a social party will be given.

The Entomological Society will hold its thirty regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at half past three o'clock in the rooms of the H. S. P. A. experimental station, Keweenaw street. F. W. Terry will read a paper on "A New Tippet."

The College club held its annual meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Walter F. Frear. The reports of the officers were read and the club listened with interest to an account of the work done during the year by the committee in charge of the Dues for Mrs. M. J. Frear.

Ed. L. Walker, commission merchant, for eight years in Spreckels building, has moved across the street into the store formerly occupied by the Hawaiian Hardware Company. Mr. Walker began business eight years ago and this is the first move he has made. The new quarters are larger and more convenient for the large trade the house enjoys.

Mrs. A. G. Hawes, chairman of the special committee of patronesses for the "Spices" hall to be given at the Mouna and Seaside hotels next Saturday evening, requests that all of the patronesses, a list of whom has been published, be present at a meeting at ten o'clock this morning in the Young hotel parlor. Plans for the entertainment of the blue-jackets at the dance are to be discussed.

The brief of the appellee, the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, located in the marine case of the British ship Loch Garvie, etc., libeled, and Charles Ritten, claimant, versus the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company et al., has just been published by the Hawaiian Gazette Company. It is a bulky volume of 185 pages, containing all the proceedings to date. The case is being carried to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the ninth circuit.

TEARFUL FAREWELL FOR THE ALAMEDA

It was a tearful farewell given to the passengers aboard the Oceanic liner Alameda last night, when that vessel finally pulled out for San Francisco. There had been many other tearful farewells, a general one each hour during the evening, for it was not known definitely until after ten o'clock when the vessel would get away for the coast. The vessel was to have sailed at ten o'clock yesterday morning, her usual hour, but was held until last night to take on over forty passengers from the Makani. When the latter vessel went into quarantine, Captain Dowdell, who was then on the Bishop wharf awaiting news of the English vessel, decided that it was time to don his uniform and start his own boat. His appearance on the Oceanic wharf a few minutes later, followed by several blasts from the Alameda's whistle, was the signal for the real last farewells. And they were very tearful.

The members of the Jack Golden company were among those leaving, and they had many friends to see them off. Golden and his wife were the center of a group, and a very large group of men, women and children, who were laden with leis. The assembly demonstration, just before the boat pulled out, was a record breaker. There were a few tears, and it was thought that possibly one or two might come ashore at the last moment. But they stayed aboard.

Captain Dowdell stated last night that the Alameda would arrive in San Francisco next Wednesday morning. There would be no good reason to force the Alameda along as he could not arrive at San Francisco before sunset next Tuesday. She will, therefore, make along at her usual gait.

Among the last-berthed passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Denham, who are leaving the Territory. Denham, who has been editor of The Advertiser's sport page, had a host of friends to see him off and cheers were called for him by his admirers as he went up the gangplank.

G. W. KIRKALDY DIES ON COAST

Member of Sugar Planters' Staff Dies From Effects of Old Injury.

A cablegram has been received at the experiment station of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, announcing the death, at San Francisco, of Mr. G. W. Kirkaldy, a member of the experiment station staff.

The details contained in the message are meager, but indicate that his death followed an operation. Five or six years ago Mr. Kirkaldy had a fall from a horse in which his right leg was badly broken below the knee. He had never recovered from the injury, and of late had been having such trouble that it was necessary to go to San Francisco, where he hoped to be able to secure the proper appliances for relief. He found it necessary, however, to go to a hospital in San Francisco, where he had been since the 22d of January.

Mr. Kirkaldy was born in Scotland, and was about thirty-seven years of age. He was a student under the London University and South Kensington science and art department, where he secured his diploma. He was for several years sub-editor of the London Entomologist, for which publication he reviewed the works published in foreign languages. He has also published numerous articles on entomology, viewing the subject both from its scientific and economic standpoints.

When the leaf hopper became such a pest in the Hawaiian Islands a few years ago, specimens of it were sent to Mr. Kirkaldy, because of his knowledge of the class of insects, and it was he who gave the name "Perkinsiella saccharicida" to the leafhopper and determined it as belonging to a genus and species theretofore unknown to science.

Mr. Kirkaldy was connected with the territorial board of agriculture and forestry during 1903 and 1904, and has been at the H. S. P. A. experiment station since October, 1904, as assistant entomologist, and has been in charge of the entomological work of the station during the absence of Dr. R. C. L. Perkins, the station entomologist.

About four years ago Mr. Kirkaldy married Mrs. Annie Dowsett Prichard. The latter was formerly Miss Dowsett, daughter of the late J. J. Dowsett. Their only child died in infancy.

MOVING PICTURES OF THE FLEET MASCOTS

Mascots of the fleet went through their stunts yesterday before the twinkling eyes of the moving picture audience. R. K. Bonine having called on each of the vessels and unrolled many yards of the film that catches the motion. Dogs, cats and monkeys he found on the warships, the majority of whom did credit to their training up by going through "Pack" the pet bulldog of the West Virginia, in the middle of his performance, gave a touch of realism that would have made a memorable picture had he not performed out of range. He stood up to make a dive at the picture machine and forced his legs on the tripod leg. Something in the look of the lens gave offense.
